Dear Parents/Guardians,

The Clarion-Limestone Area School District has been approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to provide our students with up to five Flexible Instructional Days (FID). These days will count toward the state mandate of 180 instructional days and will not require the school district to adjust the board-approved calendar.

Examples for calling a FID day: Snow, power outage, flooding, water leak, etc. These are ONE-day closures.

How will Flexible Instructional Days work for the Clarion-Limestone Area SD?

● Procedures for High School Students:

1. High school students should have their Chromebooks and chargers at home. They have been instructed to take them home every night as part of the normal daily procedures. If there is the anticipation of a one-day closure, an announcement will be made to remind all students to take their laptops and chargers home that evening at the high school.
2. Daily Attendance will be based on assignment completion. Students need to complete their assignments for attendance to be counted.

● Procedures for Elementary Students:

1. Students in grades K-6 will work on previously distributed FID work that was sent home in advance for FID use by their teachers.
2. Daily Attendance will be based on assignment completion. Students need to complete their assignments for attendance to be counted.
3. Teachers will give students credit for work completed.
4. Contact Teachers with questions and concerns via DOJO or Email. Teachers and Paraprofessionals will be available to help students as needed.
5. Elementary Students were given FID assignments for each special class. They need to complete 1 of the 5 assignments and can save the other 4 for additional FID Days. Students should complete the special FID assignments in the order of the special class they are missing that day. If they do not know, they can complete one assignment of their choice for the day.

Mission Statement: "The Clarion-Limestone School community is committed to providing students with a quality education in preparation for success in a diverse world."
